Elder Boise.

By EVERETT T. TOMLINSON.

R. TOMLINSON has written a most shrewd and real novel of character. It deals with the experiences of a young minister in a country town and the eternally new and amusing manifestations of human nature when untrammelled by city conventionalities. The young Elder Boise and the country folks about him form an interesting and attractive group of living, human beings, several of whom have oddities of character which supply an unfailing note of humor. The young man's experience in getting a firm footing of religious belief strikes a deep note and has a vital interest for all thinking people. A sturdy, full-flavored tale in every respect.

Price, $1.50.

Nature Biographies.

THE author is well known as a professor of entomology, and a writer of unusual charm on nature subjects. This volume is a sort of personal acquaintance with the lives of the more common butterflies, moths, grasshoppers, flies, and so on—the fascinating details of which insect existences make the reader want to go out and study these everyday marvels for himself. The many photographic illustrations help to give added reality and charm to the author's descriptions.

NOTES IN SEASON.

HARPER & BROTHERS are about to publish a new novel, entitled "Heart and Soul," by the author of "Espirito Santo." Mrs. Henrietta Dana Skinner. Mrs. Skinner, who is a daughter of Richard H. Dana, Jr., resides in Detroit, where some of the scenes of her story are laid.

C. C. BIRCHARD & COMPANY, Boston, have published "The Story of a Child," translated from the French of Pierre Loti by Caroline F. Smith, with an introduction by Edward Howard Griggs, which is said by James Sully to surpass in retrospective reach all other records of childish experience.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO. have ready a convincing novel of country life and character entitled "Elder Boise," written by Everett T. Tomlinson; and "Nature Biographies," by Clarence Moores Weeds, the well-known professor of entomology, specially describing butterflies, caterpillars, locusts, and many insect parasites, and very beautifully illustrated.

WAHL & HENIUS, Chicago, have just issued the "American Handy Book of the Brewing, Malting and Auxiliary Trades," a book of ready reference for persons connected with those trades, together with tables, formulas, calculations, bibliography and dictionary of technical terms, by Robert Wahl and Max Henius, the first and only American reference book on these subjects published in the English language.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS announce for August "The Holy Bible," newly edited by the American Revision Committee, A.D. 1901, being the American standard edition of the revised Bible. The publishers claim this is the only edition authorized by the American Revision Committee, and it will bear their attestation on the back of the title-page. The book will be in the long primer type, with references and topical headings.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have now ready "Our Ferns in Their Haunts," a guide to all the native species, by Willard Nelson Clute, with more than 200 illustrations by William W. Stilson. The book is written in untechnical language, though strictly in accord with the best scientific opinion. The author is the founder and first president of the only American society for the study of ferns. The book contains eight full-page plates in colors.

D. APPLETON & Co. will shortly issue "The Beleaguered Forest," a novel by Ella W. Peattie; "The Seal of Silence," by Arthur R. Conder, who, like the author of "David Harum," died before the publication of his first book, which is pronounced a great success in England. "The Story of Books," by Gertrude B. Rawlings, will be the new volume in the series which has so richly justified its title, Appleton's Library of Useful Stories. Admiral Evans's "A Sailor's Log" has had its sixth printing.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish to-day "American Leaders and Heroes," a preliminary text-book in United States history, by Wilbur F. Gordy; "The Confederate States of America, 1861-1865: a Financial and Industrial History of the South During the Civil War," by John Christopher Schwab; "The Great Epic of India," by Edward Washburn Hopkins; and "Research Papers from the Kent Chemical Laboratory," edited by Frank Austin Gooch, the last three being the first of a series of works to be issued in connection with the Yale bi-centennial anniversary. The second edition of Sydney Herman Preston's "The Abandoned Farmer" is already on the market; and Edith Wharton's "Crucial Instances" is coming into its sure and lasting success.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 22, 1901.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, should reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

FICTION AND CUT PRICES.

WE are glad to note that Mr. Ogilvie's withdrawal of his proposed re-publication of the original issue of "Salathiel; or, The Wandering Jew," the basis of the novel issued with the Thulstrup illustrations and with General Wallace's introduction, and with many other novel and interesting features, by the Funk & Wagnalls Company, under the title of "Tarry Thou Till I Come," leaves the field so far clear to the trade to make the most out of the volume which has created interest in so many relations as the first notable publication, in the line of fiction, under the net system. This book has become the battle ground, as it were, on which the net question is to be fought out, and Mr. Ogilvie's course will commend itself to the trade. The Funk & Wagnalls Company, we understand, propose to protect their line of battle, if necessary, by putting out a line of skirmishers in the shape of a cheap edition, should that be needed, but doubtless most buyers will prefer to pay a fair price for the Thulstrup edition.

The success of "Tarry Thou Till I Come" certainly goes far to indicate that novels can be put among the net books more promptly than some publishers feared. It has been the hope throughout that within a year the plan of the American Publishers' Association might be extended to include all novels published by its members; it would be a happy outcome of the present episode if it should afford proof that it is possible to make this move in the coming fall instead of next spring. We have felt, and still feel, that a half loaf is much better than no bread, and that a great advance has been made in reducing publishers' prices and abolishing discounts to the public on the large range of new copyright books included by the American Publishers' Association in its original plan. But of course what the trade most needs is that the books of largest sales shall pay a living profit, and not be used as mere advertising features for rate-cutters and department stores. We should be glad to make record of the continuing success of "Tarry Thou Till I Come" during the usual "dull season" of the summer months, and certainly the original publishers who have rediscovered this work and put it into such attractive shape have given the public full value for the price of the book, and have thus done their best to win public appreciation for a straightforward, fair-priced method of publishing fiction.

WE print elsewhere an interesting letter from William Beverley Harison, which crossed our editorial note of last week. Mr. Harison suggests a use of the proposed publisher's cipher code word, which had, perhaps, not occurred to the publishers who criticised the proposed adoption of such a word for domestic telegrams. There is much to be said in favor of such a codification of titles, as Mr. Harison suggests—but there are also difficulties. With the changes in each publisher's trade list which occur each year a consecutive numbering throughout would have to be changed each year, and there might be confusion, particularly about the time of the publication of a new catalogue, between the new numbers and the old. Whether this difficulty could be obviated by the use of the decimal system of figures, permitting interpolations while preserving the old arrangement, would be a matter for consideration, should these suggestions commend themselves to publishers and to retail trade. We are ready on our part to do everything possible to make our bibliographical helps useful in the utmost degree to both publishers and booksellers, and we have to thank cordially every one who, like Mr. Harison, contributes toward the general welfare such suggestions as those in his careful letter. The suggestion for a list of the representatives of foreign houses we should be very glad to make a feature of the "Trade List Annual," if this seems desirable to the trade.

"TARRY THOU TILL I COME."

FUNK & WAGNALLS, in a circular to the trade, define the status of their "Tarry Thou Till I Come" as follows:

This book stands on its own merits, which are distinctive and of solid value, and are fully covered by copyright. These merits make the difference between a book the world allowed to die, and remain dead for a generation, and one it now receives with enthusiasm. These distinctive and copyrighted merits are:

1. Changes in the story on almost every page most carefully made—thoroughly modernizing it, eliminating hundreds of mistakes, restoring many omissions, breaking up paragraphs into the conversational sentence style of the modern novel, giving chapter headings, also side headings on all pages, running page headings throughout, with a complete annotation of the story, explaining historical references, etc., etc.

2. Twenty illustrations that illustrate, by that greatest of American book illustrators, T. de Thulstrup. Mr. Thulstrup regards his work on this book as his masterpiece.

3. Gen. Lew Wallace's introduction.

4. The views written for publication in this book by nearly forty Jewish scholars and other of the best known Jews in different countries on Jesus from the present Jewish point of view—indicating a most remarkable change in Jewish feeling and thought. These letters are apropos of this story of the Wandering Jew, for the basis of the story is that the Jew is to "Tarry" on the earth until Jesus comes again, and that He will not come again until the "Jew recognizes Him as one sent of God." These letters are proving of great interest to the large Jewish population of America—numbering over 400,000 in New York City alone. They are also causing wide discussion in non-Jewish circles.

5. (1) The letter of President McKinley, also written for publication in this book, and the grouping of the opinions of other of the great leaders of the world's thought and action, recognizing Jesus as the controlling, molding force in our modern civilization—thus coming. (2) "The essential coming of Christ—the next step in Evolution," as presented in the prefatory part of the book; in the appendix, the history of the belief in the second coming, and the basis of the belief held by many millions to-day that He is to come in the near future in visible form.

All this completes and rounds out the story by Croly which is based on these words of doom and prophecy, "Tarry Thou Till I Come": prophecy, that Christ then climbing Calvary to His death would come again; doom, that the Jew would wander over the earth until He came.

The present book, "Tarry Thou Till I Come," is modern. It has unity, uniqueness, completeness. Its preparation has involved three years of labor, great original thought, and expense. It will not be affected by any reprint of Croly's old story of "Salathiel, the Wandering Jew," whether it be our 30-cent edition or reprints by other houses.

Without any intention on our part, "Tarry

Thou Till I Come" has become a test of the practicability of applying the net-price system to popular fiction.

The Pittsburg Booksellers' and Stationers' Association publicly urges booksellers to "give this book special attention, order it in good quantities, and push it in every way possible," "as it is the first test case, as to the advisability of the net system, it behooves the booksellers to give it their best support at this time." They conclude by hoping that the booksellers "will get behind this book and make it a record breaker."

The secretary of the American Booksellers' Association writes approvingly of this action of the Pittsburg booksellers, and adds:

"Since you of all publishers have first manifested the moral courage to include a book of fiction under the net-price system, I am sure our Association will be especially anxious to help you demonstrate the wisdom of your action. I hope the success of your book will be so satisfactory that all other publishers will feel warranted in publishing their fiction under the net-price system without further delay."

(Signed) J. W. NICHOLS, Secretary,
American Booksellers' Association.

NEW YORK, June 8, 1901.

Advice received from various sections shows that booksellers are generally regarding this as their fight.

As the case now stands, we do not think that any one will say that we claim too much in declaring that a principle of vital importance to the retail book trade of the country is at stake.

If this book be made a "record breaker" as a seller, it will be a demonstration that the public can be trusted to buy popular novels at net prices. The general publishing trade will be sure to take the hint, for all leading publishers, we believe, desire to see the application to novels of the net-price system.

THE PHONOGRAPH IN BOOKMAKING.

The Periodical, published by Henry Frowde, of the Oxford University Press, gives some interesting particulars of the employment of the phonograph in collecting material for "The English Dialect Grammar," which Professor Wright is editing for the Oxford Press. The editor is collecting these phonographic records of English dialects, partly to enable him to check the material for a comprehensive comparative grammar of all the English dialects in the United Kingdom, and partly to hand down to posterity a faithful record of the dialects as spoken at the end of the nineteenth century. Dr. Wright hopes to get about 500 phonographic specimens, and with this end in view he has prepared a list of "sentences" containing the most salient points wanted, with full directions for turning the sentences into genuine dialect. In the case of people who have no knowledge of English grammar, Dr. Wright sends the "specimen" to some educated person in the district from which the dialect is derived, and induces him to practice the specimen with some dialect-speaking person until the latter can read the specimen in good, genuine dialect. When this has been accomplished, Dr. Wright goes to the place and phonographs the result himself. By setting about the matter in this way the professor has been most successful, and already he possesses quite a number of first-rate specimens. When the specimens have served their primary purpose, Dr. Wright proposes to hand them over to some public library or institution, to be preserved for all time for the benefit of future generations. A hundred years hence people are sure to doubt some of these statements made in the grammar, and sceptics will be able, thanks to the phonograph, to hear what any particular dialect sounded like at the time the work was written.

The grammar will be treated historically, and will contain phonology, accidence, and, if possible, the syntax of the dialects. At the end of the work it is intended to give about 100 short specimens of the most typical dialects, phonetically rendered. As soon as all the material has been collected it will take about three years to prepare the work for press. In many ways the grammar will be the most valuable part of the "English Dialect Dictionary."

As for the "English Dialect Dictionary" itself, five years have passed since its first page was printed, and since then ten parts have been issued to the subscribers at regular intervals of six months with clock-like punctuality. The first two volumes (A-C, D-G) contain close upon 40,000 words, illustrated by nearly 100,000 quotations, besides 85,000 references to glossaries, etc. There are in all about 185,000 references, giving the exact source from which the material for every word has been obtained. It is a rigid rule of the editor always to give the authority for every piece of information contained in the dictionary. Volume III., containing the letters H-L, has just been concluded, and Volume IV., carrying the alphabet through the letter R, is expected to be ready in June or July this year. Volume V. will contain the letters S-T, and Volume VI. will contain U-Z, the supplement, the bibliography of the many thousands of books which have been read specially for the dictionary, and, lastly, the grammar already mentioned. By the end of 1905, therefore, unless unforeseen circumstances arise, it will be possible to supply subscribers with the whole of the six volumes.

HISTORY OF FRENCH PRINTING.

A. CLAUDIN, Paris, has published the first volume of a comprehensive "History of French Printing," to be completed in five volumes. The volume now ready covers the first half of the history of printing and presses in Paris during the xvth century. The second volume will complete the history of the xvth century. The third volume will be devoted to the history of printers and presses at Lyons, the fourth volume taking up the other provincial presses of that century; while the fifth and last volume is to be devoted to the history of printing and the foundation of new presses all through France during the sixteenth century. The work is issued under the auspices of the Imprimerie Nationale of France.

COMMUNICATIONS.

TELEGRAPHIC CODE FOR BOOKS.

NEW YORK, June 13, 1901.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I note your circular letter requesting each publisher to send code word or cable address, and am very glad to see an indication that the book trade are awaking to a realization of the business advantages of using regular codes.

I know that some years ago the Educational List published by you had a code attached, and that you discontinued it because the trade did not seem to appreciate its value. The use of the telegraph by out-of-town dealers presents so many business advantages that it seems strange that the matter has not been more extensively discussed in the trade journals. Take, for instance, the case of an enterprising local bookseller seeking retail trade and advertising that he will supply, ordering by telegraph, any book or books wanted. Suppose a long-distance telegram of ten words represents 70 cents; if a code system could be adopted by the book trade at large these ten words would represent at least five titles. The booksellers are in the main not familiar with the fact that in the standard codes the words are numbered consecutively. If each publisher represented in the Trade List Annual would number consecutively each item in his catalogue, and if each publisher adopted a telegraph cypher for his name, dealers could use any one of many codes published.

It so frequently happens that books are wanted in a hurry—that freight shipment has been ordered and dealers desire to include other books in the freight shipment, which must otherwise come by express—or that express order has been sent in and some customer wishes a book or two books added, which must otherwise wait for the next freight or express shipment, that the use of the telegraph code would seem to be a daily necessity.

Compare, for instance, the following telegram with the same thing transcribed by a code. We have taken hypothetical words to represent titles and also the publishers' names:

American News Co.,

N. Y. City.

Express immediately.
Bradypus.

John Smith & Co.

The code telegram thus represents less than ten words in place of sixteen. It is written with the Lieber code, which offers, perhaps, greater advantages than many of the others, as the name of the purchaser of this code goes into a regular list sent to each holder of a code. I have given but one use of a code. When it is understood that a long letter can be, through code use, sent by telegram in a few words, and that almost every contingency of business has been arranged for, the value of a more general use of the code in our business will be appreciated.

I would like to suggest that if publishers who are accredited agents of foreign publishers would submit to THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY a list of those agencies that an index might be published in the Trade List Annual it would largely advance business interests. At present there is, so far as I know, no index published of this kind, and it is not easy to find the accredited agent of a foreign publisher.

Yours truly,

W. B. HARISON.

CALL TO BOOKSELLERS AND PUBLISHERS.

161 6TH AVE., NEW YORK, JUNE 15, 1901.

To Booksellers and Publishers:

BOOKSELLERS.

Apropos of recent enforcing action taken by the American Publishers' Association in New York, please note they are with us, and in dead earnest.

Back them up, stock up, and join the American Booksellers' Association.

PUBLISHERS.

As soon as the net system gets in running order, and the public become used to it, there are two things we hope you will do. 1. Include all fiction on the net basis. 2. Fix net price so that booksellers may get at least 30 per cent., or one-third discount. If Waterman & Spalding can enforce prices at 40 per cent. discount there is no reason why the publishers cannot do the same at one-third.

D. Appleton & Co. have just done this by making their dictionary of New York 25 c., and giving us one-third instead of 40 per cent. This will be better for out-of-town booksellers. On books published prior to May 1, 40 per cent. is little enough to get, and booksellers, if they are wise, will get full list price for them, as cutting is more in vogue on new books. Make them net if you wish, but give us 40 per cent. profit on them.

CHAS. S. PRATT,

Member of Am. Booksellers' Association.

REGARDING "SALATHIEL."

57 ROSE STREET, NEW YORK, JUNE 17, 1901.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: A couple of weeks ago when we decided to bring out an edition of "Salathiel, the Wandering Jew," or "Tarry Thou," and announced the same in your columns, we were not aware of the fact that "Tarry Thou Till I Come," published by Funk & Wagnall's Company, was a book on which the associated booksellers of the country were making a test of the question, "Will it pay publishers to place novels on the net price list the same as all other publications?" and that the success of the booksellers on this one book would go far toward demonstrating for the American Publishers' Association the wisdom of the booksellers' contention, namely: that novels can be just as readily sold on the net-price system as any other class of literature. Upon learning these facts, we decided to withdraw our edition of "Salathiel" wholly from the market, as we do not wish in any way to interfere with the plans of the booksellers of the country to secure the application of the net-price principle to novels. We are in hearty sympathy with their views on this subject, and we trust that all other publishers will be as generous as we have been in relation to this book, and thus give the principle of a net-price system for novels a fair test, the success of which will undoubtedly be for a betterment of the business of bookselling.

Very truly yours,

J. S. OGILVIE PUBLISHING COMPANY.

OBITUARY NOTES.

HUGO LANDGRAF, the senior member of the firm of Landgraf Brothers, booksellers, died May 19, at Brenham, Texas, at the early age of thirty-five. Mr. Landgraf married only six months ago.

SYDNEY FREDERICK WALKER, vice-president of the Jessup & Moore Paper Company, and a director of the Kenmore Pulp and Paper Company, died Thursday, June 13, at his home, 109 Hawthorne Street, Flatbush, N. Y.

MAURICE B. PERKINS, professor of chemistry of Union College, Schenectady, died suddenly on June 18. He was born in New London in 1836, and studied chemistry at Göttingen, Heidelberg and Tübingen. He was the author of "An Elementary Manual of Qualitative Chemical Analysis," published by John Wiley & Son.

HERMANN FRIEDRICH GRIMM, whose death is announced from Berlin, was a critic of great distinction of marvellous erudition. He was born in Cassel in 1828, and was the son of William Karl Grimm, one of the brothers who wrote the world-celebrated fairy tales. Grimm was educated at Berlin and Bonn, devoting himself first to the historical study of art and later to philosophy. In 1872 he was appointed to the chair of the history of the fine arts in Berlin University. His most important works are "Life of Michael Angelo," "Life of Raphael," "Readings on Goethe," a novel entitled "Unconquerable Powers," and several short stories.

IGNATIUS KOHLER died at his home in Philadelphia on May 23, aged seventy-four. Mr. Kohler was born in Germany in 1827, learned the bookbinder's trade, and in 1846 came to the United States, where in 1848 he established himself as a bookbinder on 4th Street, above Race, in Philadelphia. In 1854 he began his career as a publisher by bringing out German Bibles and hymn-books, for which he worked up an immense sale throughout the country. Later he had great success with an English edition of Schiller's works. His establishment was burned in 1879, and then Mr. Kohler moved to 911 Arch Street, where he continued in business until a few years back, when failing sight obliged him to retire.

PROF. TRUMAN HENRY SAFFORD, one of the most eminent of contemporaneous American mathematicians and astronomers, died at his home in Williamstown, Mass., on June 13. He was born at Royalton, Vt., January 6, 1836. He was graduated at Harvard in 1854. In 1866 was appointed to the Astronomical Observatory at Chicago, part of the equipment of the new University of Chicago. He was a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, an Associate of the Royal Astronomical Society of England, a member of Astronomische Gesellschaft of Leipsic, Germany, and of various other learned societies. His published works included a number of astronomical catalogues and a volume on mathematical teaching, entitled "Mathematical Teaching and Its Modern Method," published by D. C. Heath & Co.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

It is said that Sienkiewicz is beginning a ten-volume series on Napoleon Bonaparte.

BLACKMORE'S memory is to be honored in Devonshire by a fine monument, to be erected in Exeter Cathedral.

GRAHAM BALFOUR has undertaken the writing of the "Life of R. L. Stevenson," which Sidney Colvin could not make time for, and it is to appear this fall.

ANNA FULLER, author of "Pratt Portraits" and "A Venetian June," is to publish through G. P. Putnam's Sons a full-length novel, entitled "Katherine Day," in which the characters are all of New England.

THAT entertaining novelist, Ada Cambridge (Mrs. G. F. Cross), has not been heard from in a long time, but she is now about to reappear as the author of a book called "The Devastators."

HERBERT SPENCER has finished his autobiography and has had it printed. Fearing that if one firm did the work it might not be sufficiently protected from becoming public property, the author invented the curious device of separating his materials in half a dozen portions, and has handed over each portion to a different firm.

OWEN McMAHON JOHNSON, author of "Arrows of the Almighty," just issued by The Macmillan Company, was married on May 23 to Miss Mary Galt Stockney, of Lakewood, N. J. Mr. Johnson is the son of Robert Underwood Johnson, of The Century Co. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson expect to make their home for the next two years in Paris.

EDEN PHILLPOTTS has completed his collection of Devonshire stories, and it is to be published on August 17 in America and in Great Britain under the title of "The Striking Hours." The work lies in the same field as that of "Children of the Mist" and contains the very cream of its author's work in the field of shorter fiction. He has chosen his title from the following words by Dr. Martineau: "God has so arranged the chronometry of our spirits that there shall be thousands of silent moments between the striking hours."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

H. C. CHATFIELD-TAYLOR, author of "The Idle-Born," is now at work upon a novel of the Franco-Prussian war, which will be issued by H. S. Stone & Co.

MISS EUGENIA BROOKS FROTHINGHAM's novel, "The Turn of the Road," which was published in February last, has reached the tenth thousand, and the demand for it seems larger than ever.

CASSELL & Co. publish an "Encyclopedia of the Game of Whist," by Sir William Cusack-Smith. It is a booklet of vest-pocket size, and the topics are arranged alphabetically. Its doctrine is modern.

JOHN LANE publishes "Japanese Plays and Playfellows," by Osman Edwards, with twelve illustrations in colors by Japanese artists, said to be the most charming and appreciative estimate of the Japanese that has appeared in some years.

A. WESSELS COMPANY announce a special limited edition of "King Noanett," by F. J. Stimson (J. S. of Dale,) first published in 1896 by Lamson & Wolfe and reissued in 1899 by Charles Scribner's Sons. It will appear in the Pan-American Library.

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING COMPANY have just issued "An American Colonel," another historical novel of the days of Burr and Alexander Hamilton, by Hon. Jere Clemens. They have also just ready an illustrated catalogue of their new and forthcoming books that speaks of energy and enterprise, and promises some very salable books.

THE library of the late Robert Jenkins, of Toronto, Canada, has been recently acquired by Congdon & Britnell, of Toronto. Mr. Jenkins was for years a well-known enthusiastic collector of Americana, and his collection of upwards of 1200 volumes, engravings, etc., contains many scarce early works relating to the North American continent.

J. F. TAYLOR & Co. have just issued "A Drone and a Dreamer," an American love story, by Nelson Lloyd, the author of "The Chronic Loafer," a novel of Pennsylvania; and "The Van Dwellers," by Albert Bigelow Paine, the author of "The Bread Line," a humorous account of a simple honest family in their strenuous quest for a home in New York.

LAIRD & LEE are about to issue a profusely illustrated book of humor, entitled "Adventures of Uncle Jeremiah and Family at the Pan-American Exposition," by Paul Pry, Jr. The book is full of "horse sense," mingled with a rich vein of fun, and will prove a favorite in trains, hotels, etc., as well as a delightful reminder of the beauties and amusing features of the Fair.

THE AMERICAN RED BOOK for 1898, comprising the foreign relations during the eventful period of the Spanish-American War, has just been issued by the Government Printing Office. It contains an exhaustive summary of the official correspondence, much of which is now published for the first time, and a review of foreign relations in the period of the conflict with Spain.

THE first of the volumes to be published for the University of Pennsylvania by Longmans, Green & Co., who have undertaken the issue of its historical series, will be "Selections from the Writings of Zwingli," edited by Samuel Macauley Jackson, professor of church history in New York University. It is said to be the first appearance in English of any of the works of the Swiss reformer.

T. FISHER UNWIN announces an important work, entitled "The Heart of the Empire," in which a brilliant group of Cambridge men who have studied the questions deal with the problems of modern city life in England. Among such problems are realities at home, the housing problem, the children of the town, temperance reform, the distribution of industry, some aspects of the problem of charity, the church and the people, etc.

"ACRES OF ASHES," the story of the Jacksonville fire, by Judge Benjamin Harrison, of the editorial staff of the Florida Times-Union and Citizen, is ready for the printer. The introductory chapter is by ex-Governor Fleming. It is a complete, accurate and graphic description of the greatest conflagration since the famous Chicago fire of 1871. It is elaborately illustrated with half-tone engravings. The book will be published at Jacksonville.

A NEW volume by Prof. Skeat, entitled "Notes on English Etymology," will be issued shortly from the Oxford University Press. The book contains an introduction of an autobiographical kind, and a reproduction of the portrait presented by subscription to Christ's College, Cambridge, of which the author is fellow. Most of the pages are made up of reprints of stray articles, and the whole may be described as a companion volume to "A Student's Pastime."

"THE LIFE OF MRS. LYNN LINTON," which Mr. G. S. Layard has written, and which Messrs. Methuen are publishing, has been undertaken at the request of Mrs. Lynn Linton's family. It tells the whole story of her personal life, of her literary career, and of the friendships which she formed with men and women so illustrious as Charles Dickens, W. Savage Landor, and George Eliot. A large number of her characteristic letters are also given.

G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY, in a new illustrated catalogue, containing over 900 titles, alphabetically indexed, announce for early publication "Equal Partners," by Howard Fielding; "Cities of the Sun," by George W. Warder; "Doris Kingsley," by Emma Rayner; a new edition of Augusta J. Evans's novels at the uniform price of $1.50 per volume; "The Adventures of Captain Kettle," by Cutcliffe Hyne, (formerly published by Doubleday, Page & Co.;) a new illustrated one-volume edition of "St. Elmo," printed from new plates; and Sir Edwin Arnold's new epic poem, "The Voyage of Ithobal."

JAMES POTT & Co. issue the "Practical Life Work of Henry Drummond," a new volume by Cuthbert Lennox. The author had personal association with Prof. Drummond in the Edinburgh students' movement, and in this work he has given this remarkable movement special prominence. He has had all his material first hand and in many cases from Drummond's personal friends, and he has been fortunate in discovering a lot of matter hitherto unpublished. The book has an introduction by Hamilton W. Mabie, and contains two fine portraits and a striking drawing by Scott Rankin.

SMALL & MAYNARD are about to publish "The Road to Ridgeby's," by Frank Burlingame Harris, born in 1873, who died before his proofs had been seen through the press. It is a story of farm life of the Middle West. This house has also published for the trustees of the John F. Slater Fund a special edition of 10,000 copies of "The Future of the American Negro," by Booker T. Washington; and a new and revised edition of James Jeffrey Roche's "Story of the Filibusters." Sargent Kaymes's "Anting-Anting Stories" are meeting with deserved success. The strange title is a Filipino expression signifying a charm or an amulet.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY announce "Captain Ravenshaw," a new novel by Robert Neilson Stephens, author of "An Enemy to the King," published in 1897, which is in its 35th thousand, as are also his "The Continental Dragoon" and "A Gentleman Player," while "The Road to Paris" is in its 25th thousand; and "Philip Winwood," published last year, has already reached the 70th thousand. "Captain Ravenshaw" will be illustrated by Howard Pyle and other artists. They also announce for early publication "The Corsair King," by Maurus Jókai, translated by Mary J. Safford, a very stirring account of buccaneer adventures of former days.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have a long list of authentic books on Japan, of which the more important are "Verbeck of Japan: a Citizen of No Country," by William Elliot Griffis; "The Gist of Japan," the islands, their people and missions, by R. B. Peery; "Rambles in Japan," by Canon H. B. Tristram; "Fairy Tales from Far Japan," translated by Miss Ballard, of St. Hilda's Mission; "The Ainu of Japan," by the Rev. John Batchelor; "The Diary of a Japanese Convert," by Kanzo Uchimura; "A Maker of the New Japan," by the Rev. J. D. Davis; "Japan and Its People and Missions," by Jesse Paget; "From Far Formosa," by George Leslie Mackay; and "China and Formosa," by the Rev. James Johnson.

JOHN MURPHY COMPANY, Baltimore, have just issued "Biblical Lectures," ten popular essays on the general aspects of the sacred scriptures, by the Rev. Francis E. Gigot. The lectures cover The Bible as literature; The historical aspect of the Bible; The dogmatic teaching of the Bible; Morality and the Bible; Religious worship in the Bible; Theocracy in the Bible; The Bible a book of devotion; The Bible and the miraculous; The Bible and the popular mind; and The Bible the inspired word of God. The book has the indorsement of Cardinal Gibbons. They have also ready "Jeanne d'Arc," by Agnes Sadlier; and "The Quest of Coronado," by the Rev. Denis Gerald Fitzgerald, a historical romance dealing with the first white men who trod the fertile fields of Nebraska.

"How SAILORS FIGHT," an account of the organization of the British fleet in peace and war, with some tactical illustrations of the behavior of modern fighting ships in action, by John Blake, with sixty-eight illustrations from life photographs, will be published at once by E. P. Dutton & Co. They also issue "The Staffordshire Potter," by Harold Owen, with a chapter on the dangerous processes in the potting industry by the Duchess of Sutherland. This work will not only be of great interest to those connected with the manufacture of pottery, but also to students of the social question, as it deals with the effective work done by philanthropists in connection with the improvement of the social condition of the workman. "The British Thoroughbred Horse," promised by E. P. Dutton early in the spring, is also now ready for publication. This book is a history of British race horses and their breeding, together with an exposition of the figure system, and is written by William Allison. This book contains the correct list of the winners of the Oaks from 1779 to 1899, St. Leger winners from 1777 to 1899, and the Derby winners from 1780 to 1899.

PICK-UPS.

"Why don't you book store clerks know more about books?" "Madam, we don't dare be intellectual, for customers would ask us so many questions that we couldn't make any sales."—Chicago Record.

CARNEGIESQUE.—Jackson: "Johnson said he would give me his daughter if I would promise to maintain her afterwards."—Mossbunker: "Huh! Anybody'd think he wuz giving away a free public library."—Puck.

THE EFFECT ON A BALTIMORE GIRL.—Those who believe that few people take novels seriously in these days should follow the case of Miss Caspari, of Baltimore. She is accused of appropriating upwards of $150,000, and, as a part of her novel defence, says that she had imagined herself to be a character in a book—none other, in fact, than "Red-Head" Nordman, in John Uri Lloyd's "Stringtown on the Pike." This is a new proof that novels sometimes are read and digested.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

THE THULSTRUP ILLUSTRATED EDITION

TARRY THOU TILL I COME

A Great Historical Romance

By GEORGE CROLY

20 Full-Page Drawings, Including a Beautiful Frontispiece
in Colors, by T. de THULSTRUP

Introduction by Gen. LEW WALLACE, who pronounces it to be one of the

SIX GREATEST ENGLISH NOVELS EVER WRITTEN

IN NO OTHER story have we so glowing and faithful a picture of that life in which Christ went to death, and the new Church took root, and the cataclasm in Jewish history came—the clash between Jew and Roman, in which the Jewish nation sank "as a continent sinks." "Tarry Thou Till I Come" is a historical novel of extraordinary power, covering the gap of 37 years from the crucifixion to the destruction of Jerusalem.

Other Important Features of the Thulstrup Illustrated Edition:

Complete Historical Notes, References, Corrections on nearly every page, Headings, and Restorations.

A Series of Remarkable Letters by Nearly 40 of the Most Representative Jews in Different Countries on "Jesus, from the Present Jewish Point of View."

A Letter by President McKinley, and Opinions of Other Eminent Leaders of the World's Thought and Action.

"The Second Coming of Christ"—A Succinct History—By D. S. Gregory, D.D., LL.D.

"Reasons for the Belief that Christ May Come Within the Next 20 Years"—by Arthur T. Pierson, D.D.

WHAT THE CRITICS SAY OF IT:

"The intensity and majesty of this book are almost indescribable. It is a sweeping torrent in thought and expression—of passion, love, remorse, adventure, treachery, bloody conflict, madness, and portrayals of wonders in the heavens above and the earth beneath—the glorious imaginings of a lofty mind, at once philosophic and poetic."—Booklovers' Library Bulletin.

"It leads the procession of historical novels at one bound."—N. Y. Mail and Express.

"Nothing more graphic has ever burst from a red hot inspiration."—Brooklyn Eagle.

"It is one of the greatest historical novels that has ever been written."—Baltimore Sun.

Regarding "Salathiel."

The following Letter explains itself, and is of interest to every bookseller:

NEW YORK, June 17, 1901.

Editor of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

DEAR SIR: A couple of weeks ago when we decided to bring out an edition of "Salathiel, the Wandering Jew" or "Tarry Thou," and announced the same in your columns, we were not aware of the fact that "Tarry Thou Till I Come," published by Funk & Wagnalls Company, was a book on which the Associated Booksellers of the country were making a test of the question, "Will it pay publishers to place novels on the net price-list the same as all other publications?" and that the success of the booksellers on this one book would go far toward demonstrating for the American Publishers' Association the wisdom of the booksellers' contention, namely: that novels can be just as readily sold on the net price system as any other class of literature. Upon learning these facts, we decided to withdraw our edition of "Salathiel" wholly from the market, as we do not wish in any way to interfere with the plans of the booksellers of the country to secure the application of the net price principle to novels. We are in hearty sympathy with their views on this subject, and we trust that all other publishers will be as generous as we have been in relation to this book, and thus give the principle of a net price system for novels a fair test, the success of which will undoubtedly be for a betterment of the business of bookselling.

Very truly yours,

J. S. OGILVIE PUBLISHING COMPANY,

57 Rose Street, New York.

A POWERFUL NOVEL.

The Romance of Gilbert Holmes.

By MARSHALL MONROE KIRKMAN.

SELLING BY THOUSANDS.

"The Romance of Gilbert Holmes" will find a permanent place in twentieth century literature. It is remarkable for the purity of its English; its choice and rhythmic diction; its profound character analyses, and its charming nature descriptions—unsurpassed in our language. The exquisite love story that runs through its pages makes the book appeal to the taste and sympathy of all mankind.

The author is the first writer to enshrine our national heroes, Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis, in the legendary lore of our country; to portray them free from the incrustations and scars of politics; to speak of them as they were—tender and true; to reach their inner lives, showing their lofty and ideal aspirations. He strips from them the ceremonies in which superficial writers and the cold historian have hidden their personality. He speaks of Lincoln as the poet and man, and of Davis in his youth, as the magnificent and chivalrous soul he was. So, too, he portrays the renowned Sac Chieftain, Black Hawk, in colors as vivid as those Cooper would have used.

"The daring venture of introducing these men in a romance has been crowned with success."—The Philadelphia Press.

"Told with captivating power."—Rt. Rev. WILLIAM E. McLAREN, Bishop of Chicago.

"A Thanatopsis in Prose."—Boston Post.

"Chaste, pure, elegant."—New York Times.

"Of surpassing interest."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Whenever opened something beautiful is found."—Christian Nation, N. Y.

Our Ferns in Their Haunts

*A Guide to all the Native Species.By WILLARD NELSON CLUTE.*With More Than Two Hundred Illustrations by WILLIAM W. STILSON.

The only book that treats exhaustively of the characteristics of the ferns. Special attention is paid to their haunts, habits, uses, folk-lore, structure, growth, abundance, distribution and varieties.

Every common or English name is given, with explanations of their meaning when this is not obvious, several hundred of these being included.

Written in untechnical language, though strictly in accord with the best scientific opinion.

The author is an acknowledged authority in matters relating to ferns, being the founder and first president of the only American society for the study of ferns.

A notable feature of the work is that it has the only illustrated key to the families ever printed, so that by its use even a child can identify any species.

With a greater number of illustrations than any other similar work, which competent judges have pronounced to be superior to any that have yet appeared in a book of ferns. There are upwards of sixty full-page plates, eight of them in colors.

take pleasure in saying to the Trade that

MISS EUGENIA BROOKS FROTHINGHAM'S NOVEL

which was published in February, has already reached the Tenth Thousand, and the demand for it seems larger to-day than ever.

This steady growth in the favor of good readers is fairly attributable to sterling qualities of character and style. It is not at all sensational, it has no villain, it has no saint; but it has a hero of noble manliness and fidelity, a heroine who comes rightly to appreciate him, a plot which does not mystify, a style which is of remarkable force and grace, and a story of uncommon interest.
